We invite you and your organization to support and participate in Small Farms Week. Sponsorship has numerous benefits. You'll see your organization's name and products showcased to farmers throughout the state, as well as representatives of commodity groups and farm support organizations.

Each year, Small Farms Week highlights the programs and activities conducted by Cooperative Extension that support limited-resource, small-scale, part-time farmers and alternative-enterprise farmers.

Monday, March 20, is our signature kickoff event, at which we launch the coming week’s activities, present a program, and hold a luncheon in the home county of the preceding year’s Small Farmer of the Year. This year we will be in Watauga County.

On Tuesday, March 21, we will also host a farm equipment show on our 567-acre farm where we will showcase the latest in agriculture, supplies and technology, and you can witness innovations in animal and crop production. Vendor opportunities are available if you are interested. Many of our county-based Cooperative Extension offices also hold educational programs and on-farm demonstrations throughout the state.

Wednesday of that week is set aside as Small Farmers Appreciation Day, with activities on A&T’s campus. During this program, we honor one of the state’s most successful and innovative small farmers. As you can see, the opportunities for sponsorship are numerous. Sponsorship and participation packages are available at a variety of levels. Those levels and the benefits are explained in this brochure. If you don't see anything that interests you, we will be happy to design a package just for you.

We look forward to working with you at this year’s Small Farms Week.
